Unblocking the cycle of water stress, crises and innovation in the Bekaa Valley. For example, when economic growth boosts development and industrialisation it can create a class divide by creating demand for more educated people in order to maintain corporate and industrial profitability.

While there is no placement, you have the opportunity to conduct your own dissertation. Willis, O. To get a sense of this, I conducted a survey, focus group, and small number of interviews with students enrolled on international development programmes including degrees run with other departments. The focus group provided greater insight, with the participants noting the degree of multi and interdisciplinarity varies considerably across modules. Like the churches, they can take for granted a powerful emotional solidarity.
